

Feeling the need of a Bible for spiritual consolation and edification in his travels, all those about the house or office being either too large to carry in a valise or with print too fine to read on a railway train in motion, THE OASIS man went to the Sonora News Company yesterday to buy one. When the scribe made known his want Van Mourick fainted. After recovering consciousness the book seller declared that in ten years experience in the trade in Nogales never before was he asked for a copy of the Holy Writ.
